LUNCH IN SCHOOLS MEETS WITH FAVOR

Is Protection to Pupils in Bad Weather—Principals Want Supervision.

"Hot dog, 3 cents."
"Buns and coffee, 5 cents."
"Special luncheon, 10 cents."

Signs like these will hang in the corridors of all the Washington high schools within the next month, if the Board of Education approves of applications to establish lunchrooms in the schools.

The idea came from Western High School, where a lunch counter in the school building was sanctioned by the board last year and is said to have given marked satisfaction.

The project is said to have the approval of principals, as it obviates the necessity of pupils leaving the building in bad weather.

The principals also want to retain the right to supervise the luncheons served. This will give them a chance to see that pupils eat soup, sandwiches, or some other wholesome food, instead of cream puffs and confectionery, they say.

ALLEGED SWINDLER HELD UNDER BOND

Accused of working the old "flim-flam" game, and of being one of the cleverest "short-change artists" of this city or Baltimore, Thomas F. Maher, who claims to be an agent of a cleaning compound, was arrested in the Police Court this morning on a charge of obtaining $5 from the cashier at Affeck's drug store.

Judge Aukam this morning did not think that the evidence at hand justified his giving a final decision in the case, and Maher was held on a $300 bond to await the investigations of the police in Baltimore, which he claims is his home.
